"Sun And Moon"

Visit "Sun And Moon" on MotoLyrics.com

The moon was so big: Orange, red, and yellow.
He reached his frozen arm right on through my window.

He said you made a wish on him the same time as I.
And we had lived and loved each other in a past life.
He threw me on the beach right where you lay.
And covered in sand I rolled over and you said, "Hey".

I feel you like the Moon feels the Sun.
I feel you.

The Sun and Moon: they work together to teach us wrong from right. So don't deny a visit if the moon comes to you at night.

He's here to remind you that
I think about you all the time.

But why'd you have to come home

with the whales and the waves?
I've been trying to avoid them all fucking day.
Let's freeze time and become Eskimos.

And I find: That the things worth the wait take time.
Time that I can't seem to find.
Can you help me through this,
do you mind?

I don't know why I allowed myself to compromise.
You thought that you could use me once,
but instead I let you do it twice...

Aren't you nice. Yeah, It's just great. (Oh!)

You were such a waste of a pretty face.
Yeah you were such a waste of a pretty face.

You were such a waste.
