In the night I see a face that's in the dark
Through his eyes I see a light shinny gold.
And this man he walks alone, singing songs of victory
When he sleeps there's a struggle and the light begins to fade

Heaven tells the past, all he had was love and fear
He was stronger then, all he had was loving hands
Then one day the thunder struck, evil tears run down
his face
And a change good to bad good to bad

Where to run
Are you there, are you there
In the winter sun
He's dancing in the wind
Where to run
Are you there, are you there
In the wilderness
Look and you will find him

A mother weeps, a child sleeps their broken hearts-
Are bleedin' wine just passing time their horror shows
Their at his grave at Violet Creek
The place where he began to seek The evil tide that would dissolve him of all good that stood within

Heaven tells the past, all he had was love and fear
Then one day the thunder struck, evil tears run down
his face
And a change good to bad good to bad

Where to run
Are you there, are you there
In the winter sun
He's dancing in the wind
Where to run
Are you there, are you there
In the wilderness

Look and you will find him

(Tonight tonight we sing the piper's song) [repeat]

Thunder, thunder in the town

Thunder waiting for a sound

Thunder, thunder in the town

Thunder waiting for a sound

Thunder, thunder in the town

Thunder, thunder in the town

Thunder waiting for a sound

Where to run

Are you there, are you there

In the wilderness

Look and you will find him

Where to run

Are you there, are you there

In the winter sun

He's dancing in the wind

Where to run

Are you there, are you there

In the wilderness

Look and you will find him

Where to run

Are you there, are you there

In the winter sun

Tonight tonight we sing the piper's song

Tonight tonight we sing the piper's song
