It's only fair to give you a warning
That I only care at four in the morning
When you're the only one left
Three hours behind on the west coast

Why be so kind to a deaf ghost
What could you possibly get out of someone like me
Self-serving and self-preserving
I'm gonna take as much and give as little as I can

In my defense, I thought you were colder
Talking sense, shrugging your shoulders While I was losing my mind, just trying to steal your attention
So sure you'd peel off this dead skin
It didn't happen in time
I got under yours

I'm losing your self-abuse and
I'm gonna take as much and give as little as I can

Sorry she took everything you want
Left a shell of a man that you'll be
And I sit by Maybe your heart can pump blood enough for both of us
Just watch yourself cause I doubt it
No, I doubt that I'll forget her
And pull it together now

So I won't let my wishes come out like lies
I was and will be a better guy
Too bad that we didn't meet back then when I'm through healing and stopped feeling like I gotta take as much

Well like I gotta take as much and give as little as I can

This your warning
