It comes without warning Got up your guard but you were never prepared for it You got all these great big dreams You like to brag but I can already tell you're holding back just a little bit

That your holding back just a little bit, just a little bit
And your holding back just a little bit, just a little bit

You sleep with the lights on although you swear you're not afraid of the dark You say you want to see everything all of the time but you're blinded by the light and you're scared you might find
That way you see isn't anything

That you're holding back just a little bit, just a little bit
And you're holding back just a little bit, just a little bit
We never want to miss out but we're far too proud to fail so fold
You're holding back just a little bit

Try hard to remember

You're so full of regrets
Your life becomes a prison You're desperate to escape Got all these great big dreams

That you're holding back just a little bit, just a little bit
And you're holding back just a little bit, just a little bit
We never want to miss out but we're far too proud to fail so fold
You're holding back just a little bit

you're blinded by the light and you're scared you might
That way you see isn't anything

You say you want to see everything all of the time but you're blinded by the light and you're scared you might

That way you see isn't anything

You say you want to see everything all of the time but you're blinded by the light and you're scared you might
That way you see isn't anything
