There's a woman, there's a man, there's a girl and there's a boy
There's a mother, there's a father, there's a daughter and there's a son
There's the moon that will keep on shining, after we're gone (and)
I declare family not to separate
Just because death said so
Well I say nah

Science and philosophy
Human mind won't stop me
There must be more
To what livings for
Then dying
There's never an end

Running over hillsides that don't exist anymore
Say goodbye to castles that float in the trembling sky

There's my conscience, and my heart, and the brain where it starts

There's the priest, there's the demon, there's the ghost in my head
There's the sun that will illuminate my son after I'm gone (and)
I demand someone to please stand up straight
To rebel from this great sky
High not liberate

Science and philosophy
Human mind won't stop me
There must be more
To what livings for
Then dying
There's never an end

Running over hillsides that don't exist anymore
Say goodbye to castles that float in the trembling sky

Running over hillsides that don't exist anymore

Say goodbye to castles that float in the trembling sky
