Until I spent three years away I never knew why the
people said:
Love is all around
For many miles abound
When I got home on that rainy day
I knew where to go
I knew which way my life was pointing to
It was pointing back at you again

Some things have come, some things have gone
I never thought you would stay so long
I tried to write some songs
To right a couple wrongs
When I recall our shadows in the moonlight in the summertime
I feel the warmth of the sun
Although I might never have won

Until I spent three years away I never knew why the
people said:
Love is all around
For many miles abound
When I got home on that rainy day
I knew where to go
I knew which way my life was pointing to
It was pointing back at you again

Pointing back at you again
It was pouting back at you again
Pointing back at you again
It was pouting back at you again
