Roswell Six - Letters in a Bottle
(Norlander, Sadler)

On paper, my words, my thoughts, my love,
I write for your eyes alone.
The ink is smeared with a tear, my love.
My heart is lost without you.

Sealed in a bottle and trusted to the sea,
Borne on the waves that surround me.
May the currents and the tides,
Be merciful guides,
And bring this letter to you.

These winds on these dark seas take me far.
I make a wish upon a star.
I hope and I pray,
These words will find their way.
And bring this letter for me.

Sealed in a bottle and trusted to the sea,
Borne on the waves that surround me.
May the currents and the tides,
Be merciful guides,
And bring this letter to you.

With the strand of your golden hair,
My love may find you there.
This page is filled with yearning.
All of my heart longs for you.

Though I sail beyond the horizon,
Though I hear the songs of tempting siren,
Only one voice calls my heart,
Your love will bring me home.

This paper holds a kiss, my love,
My fondest dreams, my bliss.
And all of my hopes and love, my love,
In a letter, I send to you.
