This old car keeps breaking down.
So we fix 'er back up and she gets us around.
But, these old parts, they be wearin' thin, and now we're stranded on the road with our heads in the wind, and wonderin' when we'll have to trade 'er in.

Love is a car - an old one -
and it has taken us to some fine places.
But, baby, we ain't gonna make it very far,
with worn out souls and tired faces.
Let's take this old car back to the fine places we been.
My sweet love and my best friend, let's fix 'er up again.
This old car we call love.

Get tired of livin' in this same damn town.

Seems everyone gets off from talkin' us down.
One of these days there's gonna blow a new wind.
When friends are enemies and enemies friends.
It'd be a God dang shame, we let it happen again.
Don't ya wanna go back to the places we been.
Come on, baby, let's fix 'er up again.
This old car that we call love.

Love is a car - an old one -
and it can take us to some dark places.
But, woman, we've come so far. It's been a long road,
don't you need a warm embrace?
Let's take this old car back to the fine places we've been.
My sweet love and my best friend. C'mon, babe,
let's fix 'er up again.
