Granddad always told us to always finish what we start.
Over fifty years of sweet love with his true love, and never did they part.
Until the winter chill when she took I'll and died in the dark. And left him, left him with a broken heart.
Sometimes love is all your missing. sometimes it's all you've got.
I guess it takes a lifetime to learn- to learn what can't be taught.
All the years they laughed and cried. Fought, forgave, forgot.
I suppose if I know a little about love, then they must have know a lot.
And all my hesitation and disapproval- is really just my refusal to do- to do what I ought.
But I'm learning that when you lose your love you gotta
live with what you got.
I guess it's time to shit or get off the pot.

You know granddad was only 22 years old when he shipped out in the navy.
He got a warning in the mess hall. he didn't finish his taters and gravy.
They said boy have you lost your mind? Can't you read the sign above the buffet line.
He said "I'm just not hat hungry Cap. I got my girl back home on my mind.
She's like a Mongolian buffet. Hot and sweet and all you can eat."
The Cap said "Son don't take more than you can put away."
You know love can be just like food. Too much will make your belly ache. I T's an all you can eat buffet. it'll give you heartburn. It'll make your heart break.
You can take all you want. But you gotta eat what you take.

I suppose If I know a little about love then they must have known a lot.
I'm learning that when you lose your love you gotta live

with what you got.
All my hesitation and disapproval- is really just my
refusal to do- to do what I ought.
But I'm learning that when you lose your love you gotta
live with what you got.
I guess it's time to shit or get off the pot.
I'm learning that when you lose your love you've got to live with what you've got.
I guess it's time to shit or get off the pot.
