I want to know what's on the other side. I hear it's a really good side to be on.
It won't take a second, I won't run and hide. I'll close my eyes and listen.
The other side can be so far away. We may not make it there tomorrow.
Then again, who am I to say? You may have crossed over many yesterdays.
Where every time you get a second chance. It's just
your first chance all over again.
And every time you take a second try- there's rules we
break and ones we try to bend.
Maybe you just got your second wind. Or maybe we just learned to listen.
To the other side.

Chorus

Listen to the other side, open up your soul and close your eyes.
Listen to the other side. you know it's gonna be alright
when you see the light.

I want to know what's on the other side. I hear it's a really good side to be on.
Won't take a second, again I'll swallow my pride.
I'll open my soul and listen. The other side can be where we already are.
And if you don't like it you can go far. No one knows who's really right or wrong.
We're all just searching for a place where we belong.

Where every time you get a second chance. It's just
your first chance all over again.
And every time you take a second try- there's rules we
break and ones we try to bend.
Maybe you just got your second wind. Or maybe we just
learned to listen.
To the other side.

Chorus
