On a swing in the rain, sipping on warm champagne,
heading north on a road with no end.

Standing knee deep in snow, pitch a tent on a knoll, fly
a kite as the moonlight descends.

No matter where we are or what we do, give me, a
lifetime of weekends with you.

Under candlelit skies, eating fritos and fries, on the beach holding each others hand.

From Spokane to the Cape, listening to books on tape,
shoot an arrow and watch where it lands.

No matter where we are or what we do, give me, a
lifetime of weekends with you.

Give the angels a try, share the last cup of chai, go back to where we first met.

In a room with a view, I would see only you, oh, haven't you gotten it yet.

No matter where we are or what we do, give me, a
lifetime of weekends with you.
