

Anna Aaron "Fire Over The Forbidden Mountain"

Visit "Fire Over The Forbidden Mountain" on MotoLyrics.com

Baby waiting the enemy sleeping at his feet such a sad thing to see wires in the trees darling sometimes I don't have a thing for you to keep
I must hide away until I'm strong enough to leave I'm so terrified I think the angels are waiting at my door he has got a gun I have never seen before when he comes in I will have to fall unto the floor it's been like this every night since I first heard his roar
I saw fire over the forbidden mountain now I cannot live like I have lived before I saw honey dripping from the singing fingers now forever I will be singing so So are you a body in the darkness of the earth were there any kindnesses to help you at the birth if images are second he must be the third if your word returns to you it must have been heard I saw fire over the forbidden mountain
now I cannot live like I have lived before I saw honey dripping from the singing fingers
now forever I will be singing so I hear the sound from across the sea I hear the cry from beyond the hill is it also inside me?
I hear the noise from the battlefield I hear the song from the foreign ship is it the last thing I will hear?
And as ride the back of the beast life and death are equal to me hear the spirits hear them roar as they assemble at the door

Visit Anna Aaron page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.