One day long before I was born a man left his forest of green The sky was blue that day and who was there to pray to bless him on his way on this noble seeming day

The distant call a famed a decree
He leave his home and family
And as it took his heal to leave he gave this final plea
The sky is blue today
I ask your hearts to pray
To bless me on my way for what comes I cannot say

Oh it's effect is felt but not seen felt but not seen
like a currents on a breeze
Oh it's effect is felt but not seen
felt but not seen

A faithful task for one was bound to seem obscured Though note worthy to some
He did it most of all

Forgotten by friends remembered by foes
He gave his life to free from us sin Loneliness and grief he knew but he made the promise of home
