

AT LONG LAST

"Watch It Simmer, Watch It Burn"

Visit "Watch It Simmer, Watch It Burn" on MotoLyrics.com

The bitter hand, oh so serene
The background clock, let the soundtrack sing
The remaining days, they ticked so slow Stop it, rewind, and enjoy the show
As the hourglass dared to fall in love with the grain, you heard my heart stop beating with a final sustain With doors locked tight, windows secured
The serendipity of life falls to the floor

Take me home, to where I am free, to where I can bleed, to where I believe So I've been told that is my heart is not made of gold, the silver has been sold, the bronze too bitter and cold
To ask me why, such a simple question, but hard to comply

So dance with me sweet, sing me to sleep
Let all the other cares in the world drift away beneath your feet
Let's dream of those clouds in the sky that are far away and hard to find Dreams worth fighting for might just come true That's when I found you

Staple me up, and stitch me with yarn Baby blue arms that glow with charm Hold my hand, I'm too young to understand Too dumb to take offense, too broken for suspenseful walking lies
With my head on straight now, hear me cry

I will close my eyes to sleep alone Pull the trigger and watch me go all night while the fuse burns bright until the morning light
Watch it simmer, watch it burn

Visit AT LONG LAST page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.

