You said you're just one in the crowd but your laughter is way too loud you fill the darkest room with light your life is complicated to but you know just what to do the light you give is not in you hold your head up high and this pain will die somehow somewhere just try

Your living in the dark where no one can see your tears but hold your head up high can you tell me that I'm wrong don't keep your broken heart too long deep inside you're growing strong look beyond your life today can you see yourself this way when the winter cold is gone?
