Somebody pinch me,
I don't believe just what I'm hearing
And I'm dying to find out just what it means
You feed me, all these little lies
To see me, react to the surprise,
Spit it out, all underneath the guise
That you're trying to protect me

The truth is easier to handle than this mouthful
Why not cut between these fingers
If you want me to read between the lines

Face me, until the day we die I will think
That I alone was the reason for this
When I broke my body for the lies,
You were just wasting my time
And this heart, is beating for a rhythm we were all once moving to
You risked it all the day you got loose

The truth is easier to handle than this mouthful
Why not cut between these fingers
If you want me to read between the lines
Between the lines

Why don't you cut between these fingers?
Between the lines

The truth is easier to handle than this mouthful
The truth is easier to handle than this mouthful
Why not cut between these fingers
If you want me to read between the lines
Between the lines
