I'm holding a drop of time in my hands
I quietly grip the forgotten memories, the lost words

When I recalled each event one by one, I thought I understood everything
But the faded words were right by my side

Nights when I can't find an answer, and a single drop of warmth, and my longing for something far away I'm spending my whole life just repeating those things over and over

I'm holding drops of time in my hands
I quietly grip the forgotten memories, the lost words

I want to grab all the things you love in my hand, never letting them cool down While we, as people, are unable to share that feeling

The meaning your words release, an unquestionable love, a feeling that has no answers If only we could convey all that just by looking at each other

I quietly grip the forgotten memories, the lost words

I'll keep this love in my heart

I've lost you...
