In times like these you learn to love a girl
In times like these you find a little star
In times like these, time will never end
In times like these you give your heart away

Raindrops caress the soft leaves
Birds whispering the life's melody
But quietly the fog is drifting into our veins
And just here you will understand that...

In times like these you learn to love a girl
In times like these you find a little star
In times like these, time will never end
In times like these you give your heart away

The sun is sinking with overwhelming sympathy
And all the flowers grow in a beautiful dark abyss
Raindrops caress the soft leaves
Birds whispering the life's melody
But quietly the fog is drifting into our veins
And just here you will understand that...

In times like these you learn to love a girl
In times like these you find a little star
In times like these, time will never end
In times like these you give your heart away
