I wonder which one of us is to blame
The nicest thing that's come my way is you but I cannot offer you my heart or name Oh it isn't fair to do me like you do I wonder which one of us is to blame Somehow I can't blame myself although I guess I should
And I can't place the blame on you I would have if I could We've made ourselves the gossip of the town
The things we've done can only bring us shame We've let our passion drag our honor down I wonder which one of us is to blame

Your nearness makes me tremble with desire your ruby red lips set my soul aflame But for you I'd be a beggar thief or liar I wonder which one of us is to blame Somehow I can't blame myself...
I wonder which one of us is to blame
