Are you coming back east to the family in the South?
Like a traveller on the search for promised lands Oh, the road's been long but stay steady as she leads you right back to the place where we began

Round here, we wear scars like souvenirs reminders of a past we couldn't mend and the rivers still rise but we weather out the storms to taste their sweet salvation in the end

When your faith is worn you've grown tiresome when you fall to the floor for the truth you cannot find (and the stars refuse to shine)

Come hell or High water

I'll be right behind

We spent our youth growing up and killing time every day another back road to explore now the stars don't shine quite as bright as they did then and the world ain't quite as simple as before

And to tell you the truth, I've been a mess since you've been gone I was lost without a compass to my name but it's been 3 years, 7 months and I believe I can't spend my whole life waiting on the rain
