Darling, please invite me in.
I want to see where we begin.
I can't recall how long it's been,
So would you please invite me in?

There's newsprint marks outside my door,
And dust upon my kitchen floor.
It cleans up well, of this, I'm sure.
So won't you please come in?

It's a long and broken road
I've been walking all alone.
When I'm with you, I am home.
So won't you please come in?
Darling, please invite me in.

We may be flawed by design,
And now may not be the right time.
But you came without a warning sign.
And I'm begging let me in.

It's a long and broken road
I've been walking all alone
When I'm with you, I am home.
So won't you please come in?
Darling, please invite me in.

From the morning dawn till the day is done.
From the call to arms till the war is won.
I'll release my fear with the falling sun.
If you'd just invite me in.
