Love's so gone but we're still here trying to make sense of all our tears We fell so far from what it was and like a ghost it got away from us Still we take another ride on this vicious cycle walking on a tightrope with a blindfold We're holding on so close when we have to let it go

Let it go
Let it pass find the strength to not come back we had it all then it crashed now we kill ourselves to make it last love we tried to save has gone away and there's no turning back when you're running on empty you're running with nothing at all Grown so tired of holding on but a little more scared of being alone trying to find the strength to say goodbye but your cold hand pulls me back inside we could blame ourselves and keep on trying but the truth is I'm just tired of lying in the quiet broken sound of a ship that's going down
