I'll tell you what
I hope you find
What it is you're after

And as for me
I will be Dreaming still of clocks all growing like fruit on my fingers' branches
And I'm thinking of things I will need in the past Tell me, where's the use in that?
It's no use to regret
And yet
The future sure didn't look like this when we first met

I'll tell you what
Time is not:
An arrow moving forward
No, I wade in seas
Of memories
I turn each moment slowly round beneath the amber light
'Til I can't see what it was to start with, or which version is right
In the maze that is my mind
(I'm not so good at goodbyes)

Deep summer grass
Your hair is tousled like a windblown pirate flag
A swirl of color, smoke and ash

Our time's been had
The clocks are sinking to the bottom of the bank
But I'm always looking back
