(T. Sly/C. Shiflett/M. Riddle/R. Koff)
Father works the late shift, mother drinks
Herself to sleep
Brother's outside fiending with a match
And gasoline
They told her lies and gave her no hope
For tomorrow
And all the fairy tales just fade away
The brightest day of all, the one that She's been needing
Turns to gray
The boyfriend calls her crazy, teacher
Bores us all to sleep
And friends are in the bathroom
Speaking just like enemies
Nobody understands the shame that
You've been feeling
The dirty secret living in her heart
It must be hard to put the pieces back
Together, torn apart
Always there to make you think that
You're no good
There's nothing wrong with what
You've done
They just wanna lift you up and throw
You down
And make you stop when all you
Wanna do is run
Nobody understands her heart that's left
There bleeding
The dirty secret living in her mind
They'll always tell you that you lit the fire
You're feeding, left behind
