Life must be empty when living a lie
With something to hide and nothing to show
You have learned nothing but how to destroy Things that friends love you couldn't leave alone

Someday it's gonna hit you between the eyes that we're not sixteen years old anymore One day those people that used to welcome you with open arms
Will see you coming and hide then lock the door

People that listened to you were afraid Even friends that knew you as a kid Now you are sorry but you'll never change change the things that you already did Someday it's gonna hit you between the eyes that the seeds have already been sown Find your own garden because you still need space to grow Until that time you will remain alone

Don't try to come around with your pathetic lies cause I can see it in your Eyes that you will always be the same and you will never Have to say Goodbye it's time for truth and not for lies...
That you have always told
Your trust was bought and sold you're all alone
