Blue Billie swore sheâ€™d never lose the bet with her life

She packed her bags at twenty, left her memories behind

Though were the memories of a girl that usually smiled
But now thereâ€™s wrinkles round Blue Billieâ€™s eyes

She can afford now just a grown-old sight

Blue Billie joined the band playing night over night
Found people in the clubs tear their dreams all apart
When money came the stage became her paradise
She left her boy just to become a star

So she busted out of that misery

Her old piano gave her everything she needed

But success erased her hometown with a blow

Thought of having found the right place to call home
In the audience applause

Â

Canâ€™t you feel a little cold around?

Slammed the door in front of past and now?

Canâ€™t you feel a little empty around?

If you canâ€™t buy with all your money one new home

Blue Billie hid her shyness behind sunglasses too black Forgot how good itâ€™d been watching skies right on face

Hearing the echoing words from the valley below

Swearing to Tom â€œIâ€™ll never let you goâ€

Waiting for better days and finding them already gone

So she realized the place sheâ€™s coming from

Could never be replaced by any cityâ€™s smoke

And her piano let her go

Canâ€™t you feel a little cold around?

Slammed the door in front of past and now?

Canâ€™t you feel a little empty â€˜round?

If you canâ€™t buy with all your money one new hometown

Blue Billie married Tom in 1989

Sheâ€™s got a little boy,Â Â maybe heâ€™ll play the guitar

At night she stands upon her own windowsill
She still can hear that piano on the cliff as she turns away
