California, woke up screaming.
All the night
A nightmare didn't let her sleep all right
In her dream people lived in misery
While trying to be, as seen on TV.
That girl is different, unusual.
Follows no template.
Role models, fashions
Are those simple things
She doesn't understand.

People working for the lowest wage
And spending it on crap.
Trying to reach the complete happiness,
And forgetting who they are.
People taking care of sex appeal,
Scared of denial.
She's the one that breaks the rule, and knows
That she's not fitting.

She's gonna break
The rules, no fashions, she will follow.
She's gonna break
All stereotypes again.

Understand the way she feels,
When someone points at her and fears.
Understand the way she lives,
It's not so different, so understand it now.

Superheroes, she never trust at all
Or prefab models she cannot allow
She's proud to be, and never wanabe.
Another copy as seen on tv
That girl is different, unusual.
Follows no template.
Role models, fashions
Are those simple things
She doesn't understand.
