100 kites flew in a flock
100 dogs threw up a bark
The wheels and pedals of our bikes they spun In mechanic salute the winter sun pasted poorly above like a glittery piece of tinfoil
Don't you dare fall down

If I'm this tired while having fun
it makes me worried that something's wrong
How much longer will I be young
So much stuff that I haven't done

On the soggy streets of Budapest on an escape mission from the West We met the remnants of the Welsh invasion It took all our wit and bravery and we had to stop for elevenses So eventually we chose to embrace them

If I'm this tired while having fun
it makes me worried that something's wrong
How much longer will I be young
So much stuff that I haven't done

If I'm this tired while having fun
it makes me worried that something's wrong
How much longer will I be young

In another bar, on another street but it really might as well not be We laugh and toast away the nighttime hours
And at 6 AM, when I go to sleep
All the birds are scowling in at me
And I beg them in their mercy to forgive us

If I'm this tired while having fun
How much longer will I be young
