At this aversive breaking point you're splitting hairs with chainsaws
That's just what you're about now cut it back
They say the devil's got your soul, What you don't have he can never hold They say the devil, Satan, got your soul the truth is you're just breaking Free from the chains of society's prison. Their clouded judgement lets you spread false hope Your hollow body's left to writhe in the pain of your choices consequence.
They say a part of you dies when a fallen soul is left behind, lost in time.
Their silence shadows the fear of running into your own evil kind.
They say the devil's got your soul, what you don't have he can never hold This fucking evil is choking my heart. The evil tore you apart.
Every time the bitterness cuts too deep you can only accept the pain that ensues.
You Think You Know My Weakness
And for every single soul that falls in your wake a trail of misery is left among your common man Untie My Hands
They say a part of you dies when a fallen soul is left behind, lost in time.
Their silence shadows the fear of running into your own
evil kind Gone are the shackles from society's embrace, my blood is turning black and burning my veins Now live your lives and burn with your lies.
Can you feel it dying, in the breaches of your soul.
Cold and lying, in the darkest corner, the life that would last has gone.
Well they say the devil's got your soul
I know that what you don't have he cannot hold Your absent soul, don't free me.
