I know this is not what you want to hear we've built this place together all of these years if you're filled with confusion we've done nothing wrong looking at the pieces, I realized that we didn't have them all
When we began, my mind was young and the sun warmed my touch but it blinded my sight back then I knew, we started to build our home through the summer underestimating the winters night We kept on, We kept on, We kept, kept on building I felt like we were too far in, too far in, too far in to stop Now we need to salvage what we can I saw our home approaching cold walls and a roof that couldn't hold although our fire provided warmth the flame and foundations would not stay through the storms we'll lift and take everything we laid build with it, you'll be glad that we didn't stay create a home warmer than one we could have made all the pain that you're feeling resides within me if I appear unaffected know I'm not empty as you search for comfort, I hope you will see the guilt that wrestles inside barely lets me breathe and I can hardly speak about you
