Everyday I walk down that street climbing up and falling down
On the background of that scene the invisible crowd still run
"Till nobody wants to see me I can go wherever I want Tamed in a video frame I'm pretending a savant It's going to be a hard traveling down the Route 99 Stuck between a flock of vultures which drink my blood like a wine

Inside the monastery the journalist take a bow
To the Hades the young millionaires gone three years in a row
Suddenly in the shadows from a rolling sea of fear Arrived a girl called Rhea and now everyone disappear I came to tell her something but she just started to laugh
I said "Everyone has got what I hate but you got what I love"

Behind a train station I met the old beggars Lying on a railroad and still playing their guitars Meanwhile in the castle the clowns skating out onto the ice
They told me where the unnamed woman sells love at attractive price
So behind a newsstand I smoked a cigarette And I noticed the beggars lying in her bed

Beneath the Rastenburg lake in the backside of the park
A homeless person's shelter looks like a wigwam in a dark
And a neon stars glistening in a plastic mind of mine Someone in a black suit screaming "I am sweet like a red wine"
I looked around I saw a woman with bandaged hands Everyone wants to help her but she still resents

Daphnia in a glass of water shows me where sleepwalker climbs

And the kobzar somewhere hidden plays the same sounds a million times An armored personal carrier standing outside of the town
Beside me a schizophrenic jumping up and down
And all of the happy people ask me why I don't wanna pick up the rice
I said "Because I am not the one of you and I won't be repeat it twice"

Revolution themes tied through my ears "Rip down all love" I screamed "Life is only black and white, I shall be free" I dreamed Snowing all around, well a maple left all of its leaves
And a stormy water tries to destroy a levees Veterinarian Dreyfus making a child in his test tube
And a fake one standing in the gallery although he's so much rube

The unemployed man going from a closed sugar refinery
And with a smile he shows me he's own small winery Well, the Teddies fighting with the Crew inside of their minds
And the Latin notary dancing where a thousands bones lies But my neurologist calls me loudly she is screaming to her phone
"Boy around there's nothing special you are here alone"

Now the sky is almost hidden and I am begging to hide
But I've read my back pages and I opened my eyes wide
So now I'm escaping again to the place where ground burn
And I really want all these pictures to return
So now in a midday heat I'm watching a river flow
But the cheaters told me that it's time to go
