I was thinking about the day
When I was eight years old and stared away
At the sun until my sight began to fade
My eyes started to ache
Was it hate or was it fate for what's been done and was done?

Hey Danny wait!
Are you listening? Are you listening now?

The night you let it go
Did you promise not to leave the sun alone?
Because seven years have gone by yet unknown
You let silence pass the time
Like the aching of my eyes, it sends shivers down my spine

Hey Danny wait! Danny wait!
Everything that you loved you have left here now Hey Danny wait! Is there anything you'd like to say!
For the years you spent killing this poor boy now

I was thinking about the day
When I was eight years old and stared away
At the sun until my sight began to fade

Are you listening? Are you listening now?
