Staring into the storm, with the clouds turning black
and the wind's picking up;
It feels like an attack of the powers of hell waging war
on my soul.

And I feel myself brace in the fear and the cold.
But I've been here before and I'll be just fine.
I've been here before, time after time.
God steps into the fight and settles the score.
He's already shown I don't fight alone.
I've been here before.

I was not at the tomb when he told Lazrus, "Rise,"
Or the side of the sea when He made it divide,
But I've lived long enough to know what to do;
I'm gonna wait on the Lord and I'll keep praying through.

'Cause I've been here before and I'll be just fine.
I've been here before, time after time.
God steps into the fight and settles the score.
He's already shown I don't fight alone.
I've been here before.

I've been here before and I'll be just fine.
I've been here before, time after time.
God steps into the fight and settles the score.
He's already shown I don't fight alone.
So I will not worry or doubt anymore.
I've been here before.
I've been here before.
