Everybody's always looking for something they need Sometimes an object and a person become the same thing
But what happens when you wind up where you wanted to be?
When a better day tomorrow becomes yesterday's dream
All right...

Johnny-Hot-Body Metrosexual
Never goes to the gym without his hair gel
He tones up his abs and his pectorals
He likes to smile at her like an alligator
Oh yeah

Needy nerdy Ned's always sitting at his desk
With personalized stationery and fountain pens
He writes her long letters that he'll never send So afraid of a rejection that he'd prefer to pretend

Always see everybody's eyes staring at her
But she's staring at me
Everybody knows she's one of a kind
Something special saved up just for me

Then why
Am I
So sad

Father Paul Priest is on his hands and knees
Shunning his eyes and the girl that they see
He calls to the lord of the heavens and seas
Begging for forgiveness and mercy

Sid Punk Rocker, still living with his mom Always spikes his black hair before he spray-paints the town
When he's home he stares at the posters of the Sex
Pistols
But his favorite one is her stuck on his bathroom wall

Always see everybody's eyes staring at her
But she's staring at me
Everybody knows she's one of a kind
Something special saved up just for me

Then why
So sad

In this life the only thing that I want
Is a prize on a wrapper of a stick of gum
But I guess I got lucky when she came along
Even if I don't
Everybody thinks so

Even if I don't
Everybody thinks so

Always see everybody's eyes staring at her
But she's staring at me
Everybody knows she's one of a kind
Something special saved up just for me

Then why
Am I
So sad

Either take it home
Or throw it back in the sea
