Gazing from rooftops steep lunacy grows in the heat tragedy finds us bring her to me

Tuck away your thoughts of happy times and throw on the fire your memories of hand in hand and unified bright minds with your wandering eye you've begun for yourself your own undoing make no mistake the blame is yours you'll carry it with you forever

So taste the skin don't blink your eyes in the ecstasy and surprise see the human spirit die

Never wanted to be like this she put a gun to my head put my hands on her body I stepped outside myself never meant to hurt you and kill myself in the process

So descend my son into what you've begun the hurt you feel is tenfold in her world

Feel her forgiveness and the awkwardness; the senses' circus
how could one beaten down feel the love again and take the pain away it's just a fraction of the fearlessness in the lone salvation but how it burns to know the lusty memory of filth and betrayal

So let it burn let the images careen feel your own self worth disappear in the cream

she put her heart to my head to erase my sorrow but we never will get it back never meant to hurt you and kill myself in the process.
