disconnect an impossible divorce that put the life into you that's too late to abort i never gave you the time that you deserved i never gave you even half of what you're worth my beautiful son can you feel it inside you my son could you beat me black and blue for all the doubt and apathy just trying to keep your feet on the floor just trying to put the fear into you just trying to board up all the doors and i can't tell anymore and maybe you'll realise when you take those little tests the more you breathe the more you age you know yourself even less nobody ever said they'd love you forever they grow you up and let you down and separate forever

one day all this could be yours, all this, one day all this could be yours

one day all this could be yours...
