"At Sea"

Oh the way theyâ€™ ll never know
A wife is left with a child Iâ€™ ll never hold
I fear my end will be

One of the many tales untold

The sky is dark no stars in sight
There is no way to guide us
Through this night

A thousand miles from the coast
Dead reckoning weâ€™ ve lost all hope
As the waves crash over on the bow

I listen as the wind begins to howl

I hear the sirens singing out
A luring sound with no one in sight
They are

Too close to my ear tonight

This is my last mayday call
This shining ocean tells it all
A reflection of what I will be

In the Water

Half the deck has gone under
Every possession I have is thrown
As I begin to pray

But not for this day

The ship is lost its going down
The crew has gone no ones around
What else can I do

I grab the wheel and think of you
