We lost the walls that built the houses that we lived in we went to war with mother nature and we lost I still hear the cries of all the innocent children and wonder why people had to pay that cost

we still have hope
we still choose faith
despite the tragedies we go through we still know that we'll be safe and we'll be strong , rebuild this place we will transform all of this sadness into smiles upon our face so we hold our heads even higher as we walk through the fire although it seems we're sick and tired we still look on to better days.

First there was an earthquake then there was a wave it wiped away our lives right in front of our eyes along with everything we've gained dear lord almighty you know that we cant compete so I'm screaming up to heaven hope you have mercy on me

we still have hope

we still look on to better days. (2X) with a little unity we all can go higher with a little hope i know that we can inspire all we really need is work towards what we truly desire and then you'll see that we can prevail
