

Hayward Justin "One Lonely Room"

Visit "One Lonely Room" on MotoLyrics.com

One lonely room Nobody there Nobody sits In one lonely chair I know the feeling For the first time in my life Oh I should I should have known Better Oh I should I should have known I should have known better One lonely room No footsteps on the floor Nobody needs To answer the door I know the feeling For the first time in my life Oh I should I should have known I should have known better Oh I should I should have known Better You took the wind right out of my sails You took my train right off the rails You left a car that had no wheels You left some shoes that had no heels You took the wind right out of my sails You took my train right off the rails

Oh oh oh
One lonely room Nobody there Nobody sits In one lonely
chair I know the feeling For the first time in my life

Oh I should Oh yes I should have known I should have known better Oh I should I should have known Better You took the wind right out of my sails You took my train
right off the rails You left a car that had no wheels You
left some shoes that had no heels You took the wind
right out of my sails You took my train right off the rails
You took the wind right out of my sails You took my train
right off the rails You left a car that had no wheels You
left some shoes that had no heels You took the wind
right out of my sails You took my train right off the rails Oh, oh

Visit Hayward Justin page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.