Eyes never tire, they never blink,
They never fade and they always see
And without fear, and without greed,
Emotionless they view us logically
The age of machines destined to rule all
World of machines behind the fire wall
The evolution
No need for doubt, no need for tears,
No need for wealth, no need for sympathy
They only wait bide their time,
Calculate it all so patiently
The age of machines destined to rule all
World of machines behind the fire wall
The evolution
It will come like the shadow of a cloud on a summer's day
Like the shadow in a picture, never goes away
Like a picture on a screen that you know is a lie
There's an enemy within that you can visualise
The age of machines destined to rule all
World of machines behind the fire wall
The evolution
