I never put much thought into the future
I lived day to day but honey that changed
And you should know by now
It's all because of you when i say
That I'm growing up to be a better person
Still exposed to a life i know and love
All i need are the people here around
And to see your face when the sun comes up

There's something Pulling Me Down i can't control
And it's calling me home
And something's Pulling Me Down, it won't let go
Can you feel it now?
On and on, i carry on in hope that i can find someone
Or something waiting for me beside the sea
Here in California

I've got a lot to say, but not enough time
To get it all out, you always had me tongue-tied
I wanna get it right so you can get insight
And understand exactly what is i realized
Never had a lot in life but it never bothered me
No no, it never bothered me
Cause i knew that you were out there somewhere
Patiently, still far away from
Will you wait for me?
