Ashes

You try too hard to find a new tomorrow
Your emptiness is greater than your sorrows
Your mind begins to speak as your soul begins to fade away
Drowned in silence you close your eyes
But suddenly you see a light, it's like you're coming back to life
And time makes you realize that someone's into the depths of your mind
Throw all the ashes away, live for today
Follow the voices in your head and your nightmare will end

Resurrection

Lost in lucid dreams, somewhere in between
Memories that make you cry yourself to sleep at night
The writings on the wall, tales of the past
That push you over the edge again
A hope that rises from the ashes of the downfall of your soul
A day that dawns within, and gives you wings again

[CHORUS:]

A silent prayer answered by a divine twist of fate
Throw the ashes to the wind, and break free at last
Resurrect yourself again, as a new day dawns today

Staring at the cracks as your worlds collide
An empty shell and shadow of your former self
No peace of mind, no will left to break
The days drift on in to the night
The pain will only last if you let it take hold of your soul
A halo lights the way and gives you wings again

[CHORUS]

There's no looking back as you're on the attack
To conquer your fears at last
The thin line between, a whisper and scream
To chase away the demons of the past

[CHORUS]

Submitter's comments:Â

This song is actually a two-part ballad, consisting of two different songs of the band's album "Crossroads To Oblivion", but as the lyrics of both songs belong together, I have kept them together here as well.
