I think I've been here before but I don't recognise the sky, the ground the noises, people's stares and trading voices. The pictures in my head are fading, the colours of this place degrading, now I'm lost again in the ruins of my mind.

I'm the one who's now forgotten in this place where I'm not welcome and all of this was all for you, I'm standing here alone. I can't read between the lines when they're both two worlds apart and I keep thinking about the place I thought this was.

Save me, 'cause I'm lost in doubt. So save me from just fading out.

I have been waiting here for far too long, my mind is giving up. I'm more alone now I have lost the place, the place I call my home.

I never said that I'm a saint but who deserves to feel this faint? Spend all their time just tracing steps of paths they've crossed before and now I'm stepping back, whilst moving on. Am I too late to see this, or can I turn back time?
