I used to know everything about you
But today when I tried to point you out to one of my friends
I picked the wrong girl again
Don't see you in a crowd anymore
I think it's you, but I can't be sure

You're wearing disguises
Occasionally it surprises me
When it turns out to be you
Wearing disguises

I don't think you want me to see you ever again
And today I saw you dressed as a flowerbed
Last week you had a wig on your head
Directed traffic in the street
And your shoes were too big for your feet

You were wearing disguises
Occasionally it surprises me
When she turns out to be you
Wearing disguises

I used to know everything about you
But today when I tried to point you out to one of my friends
I picked the wrong girl again
Don't see you in a crowd anymore
I think it's you, but I can't be sure

You're wearing disguises
Occasionally it surprises me
When she turns out to be you
Wearing disguises

Wearing disguises. (x18)
