It's funny that when I die my friends will get to see what kind of suit my mom buries me in I hope it's dark blue with blue stars
When the priest leans over me and starts talking about Jesus and the state of my soul please remind him we're having a funeral here not a play Pick me up Four for each side of the box
March me to the shiny black car Long winding procession of cars Mostly of silver and black Gentleman in black suits and the ladies in black Dresses and gloves
Now carry me out to the grave
The spot where I've paid to be buried And just before whoever gives the command to send my body down I'll jump out of the box and tap dance from head to bald head I'll swoop and I'll spin I'll rise and dive down again I'll laugh like a baby so happy and free
And no one will see no one will notice me
