There's a darkness that can be touched, in this cold were I live, can't find peace with myself, as you take and I give.

The anger is born right now to destroy our remaining faith, in my heart a memory killed by a unknown, unseen hate.

I'm at war with the world as I try to keep myself alive, they gather to get me down as I consider to end my life.

And everything I ever thought or dreamt that I would be, disappeared through the days there were only me.

We all know my mistakes well, but no one knows the following guest, a stranger at my heartdoor, I believe everything's a test.

as I try to keep myself alive,
as I consider to end my life.
