

Jensen Code

"Moonday"

Visit "Moonday" on MotoLyrics.com

Moonday

To hangar four
Through the no-lone zone
The calling of the Earthly siren

To distant rocks
So far from home
Euphonic lovesickness awoken

And the sound of the wave and the light that it gave
And the sine in a time we're unable to read
And the sound of the wave and the light that it gave
The sine of the right key
We had to come, we had to leave

They tried to warn us
They tried to hurt us
And they call us the deserters

But we are strong
And though we don't belong here
We will return with our children

And the sound of the wave and the light that it gave
(And a wave of the sound of the music we found)
And a sine in a time we're unable to read
(By the light of a site deep underground)
And the sound of the wave and the light that it gave
The sine of the right key
We had to come, we had to leave

Can you feel the mass
And the need to breathe?
Never fear my dear
We're about to leave
First time sighs
But we still believe
in something

Can you feel the mass
And the need to grieve

Never fear my dear
It was meant to be
Don't listen to our sighs
'Cause we still believe
in the music

And the sound of the wave and the light that it gave
(And a wave of the sound of the music we found)
And a sine in a time we're unable to read
(By the light of a site deep underground)
And the sound of the wave and the light that it gave
The sine of the right key
(And a wave of the sound of the music we found)
We had to come, we had to leave

Can you feel the mass
And the need to breathe?
Never fear my dear
It was meant to be
First time sighs
But we still believe
in something

Can you feel the mass
And the need to breathe?
Never fear my dear
It was meant to be
Don't listen to our sighs
'Cause we still believe
in the music

(Music, music
Music, music)

(Repeat)

Sometimes we slip between the semitones
And the key it cannot hold
The spaces in between the semitones...
Welcome home

Visit Jensen Code page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.