you gotta know who to trust you never know where they've been i never struggle with words to define how they get under my skin and i'm not looking for much but you don't have it at all it seems like such a disasterous course to wanna bring us all down when you go and i heard those same words years before...

You gotta pick up the phone when they give you a call you gotta know what to say to them baby when they want you to sell your soul of all the million demands that you could make of a man you took your jealousy straight from the core into the palm of his hand and I heard those same words years before (yeah yeah yeah!)

they got your number
you watch your back cause you can't trust anyone

i'm not expecting too much
you're just an accident waiting to happen i'm not afraid of you changing it all

and i heard those same words years before

(yeah yeah yeah!)
it isn't over the shred of hope that you had shriveled up in the sun
yeah yeah yeah
