Ok so, i wrote this song drunk and i'm recording this song drunk sp, this is for her

i'm staring at our picture frames
i think i kind of miss your face maybe we could spend the day remember how we use to lay down and you know you don't have as much fun with anyone else
and you know this beer won't drink itself haven't seen you since last december even prettier than i remember you're like a breath of fresh air i take in and is it weird i wish you were naked oh, you love my jokes said oh, you always loved my jokes said oh, so if i went to kiss you would you kiss me back said oh, i know its been awhile but i hope so i'm staring at our picture frames

since when did you grow up hello kitty always was on your bag and your socks and cuties were always my fear now you're all sex and the city on me so grown so mature and so able bodied to pay your taxes take it back to class when i didn't have no chapstick you were so bright-eyed and still believed in magic we were so natural but now we're so plastic when did we grow up let's smash the clock and slow up but if i have to hear one more thing about your business career i might just throw up but you showed up which so proved the old you is in there somewhere so moves the old school into an old pass but let's open a new book

i think i kind of miss your face
else
and you know this beer won't drink itself
