So basically, you're like the only person who's not impressed by any of this and i love that workaholic, i'm a bad one sitting in front of this computer couldn't move me with a handgun us musicians are a sad bunch half the time can't remember if i had lunch but she knows my heart (my heart) she knows my heart (my heart) she knows my-knows my-knows my i understood when you were mad at me when i showed up late to the cheesecake factory i came a, hour late but you fled the scene spanish waiter said you peaced around 9:15

before anybody trunk knocked i was a skinny little italian with nothing but a jump shot and if i ever got a hot head she would call up Judy Bellion in a hot sec you bet

she's like a song, so eclectic and her eyes are like a string section and her legs are like an eletric guitar and i'm hendrix i'm tempted to shred along her frets kid get it like, shred along her frets. a guitar reference, cause her legs.

i'm basically explaining this right now because when she listens to this she's not even going to be able to follow what's going on and i think, like i said before, that's what i like most about her.

what's wrong with me?

she sees past everything no smoke, no mirrors, to see, me clearer i think bout wedding rings let me slow down.

and if she ever left this home i'd have trouble breathing on my own (on my own) now i feel like you need to know you gave wings, gave wings, to my soul
